For The Future

Wood's blueprints for the future have pervaded all aspects of school life. The reality of construction work in nearly all parts of the building has produced a great surge of anticipation by all members of the Wood family. It has influenced their present participation as it will their future plans and work.

Wood has progressed through the years from an enrollment of 1274 in 1953 to 2333 this year. During these years there have been many improvements, including new auditorium seats, and additional classes.

This year, however, Wood takes an even greater step toward the future. Wood will see the addition of new classrooms, the building of a new gymnasium, new offices, improved classroom facilities, and the installation of an even more advanced library system.

The new Wood will be one of even more unique classes, advanced courses, and rapid advancement; however, we will still be a community of people working together for the future.

Outstanding Students Honored On Awards Day

Awards day at Wood High is a time of anxiety and anticipation. Students make heroic attempts to keep from quizzing teachers to find out if they are to receive an award. Then the notice is received. . .be in the auditorium on awards day!

The awards for which they are eligible are many. Each department honors the outstanding students in its area and presents awards of national significance, such as the Bausch and Lomb Medal for science, the D.A.R. Award, and the Altrusa Award. Some of the college scholarships are announced at this time.

Vocational Awards Day is held at a separate date. At this time outstanding students in these areas are awarded for their accomplishments.

Jean Lunday was the recipient of the Altrusa Award for outstanding junior girls.

Nominees for English awards were Russell Brown, Beverly Middleton, David Moore and Sharon Deprend.

Floats, Royalty, And Parade Highlight Homecoming

The Library Assistants proclaim: "We've Got You Catalogued and We Aren't Worried."

Homecoming is always the most exciting home game in the football schedule, and this year Wood High had the biggest and best Homecoming ever. Weeks of preparation were necessary before the final ceremonies. Royalty was elected, floats were designed, decorated, and supplies were gathered even until the last moments before the big game.

King and Queen for this year's Homecoming were seniors Hershel Enochs and Reva Gholdson. Floats included the winning Spanish Club's "No Bull From You." Others were the seniors' "Sportsmanship is our creed: Another Victory's What We Need", the Library Assistants' "We've Got You Cataloged and We Aren't Worried", the Tri-Hi-Y's "Set Their Hearts Afire", and the Junior Honor Society's "Stamp Out The Spartans". Girls from the Beauty Culture course proclaimed "Beauty is Our Business."

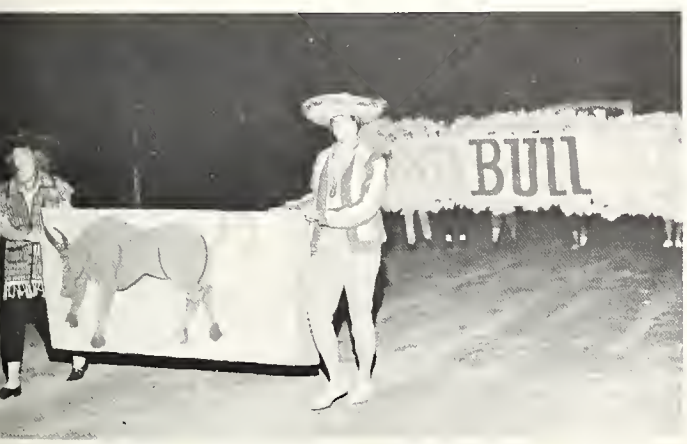
Candidates for Homecoming King and Queen were freshmen Lester Brown and Cathy Lee; sophomores Haywood Ware and Reeda Pemberton; and juniors Richard Carter and Patsy Fugua.

Wood High's Senior Class says, "Sportsmanship is our Creed; Another Victory's what we need."

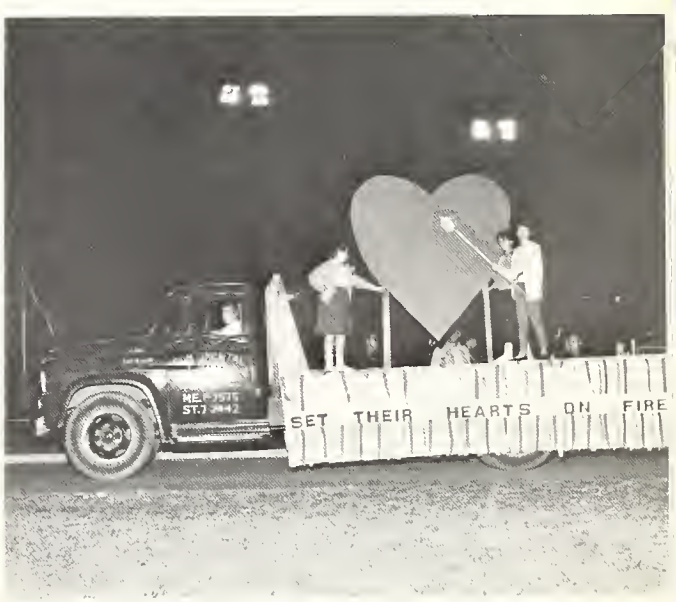
The Junior Honor Society shows their attitude with a cheerful yell of "Stamp Out The Spartans".

Celebration In October

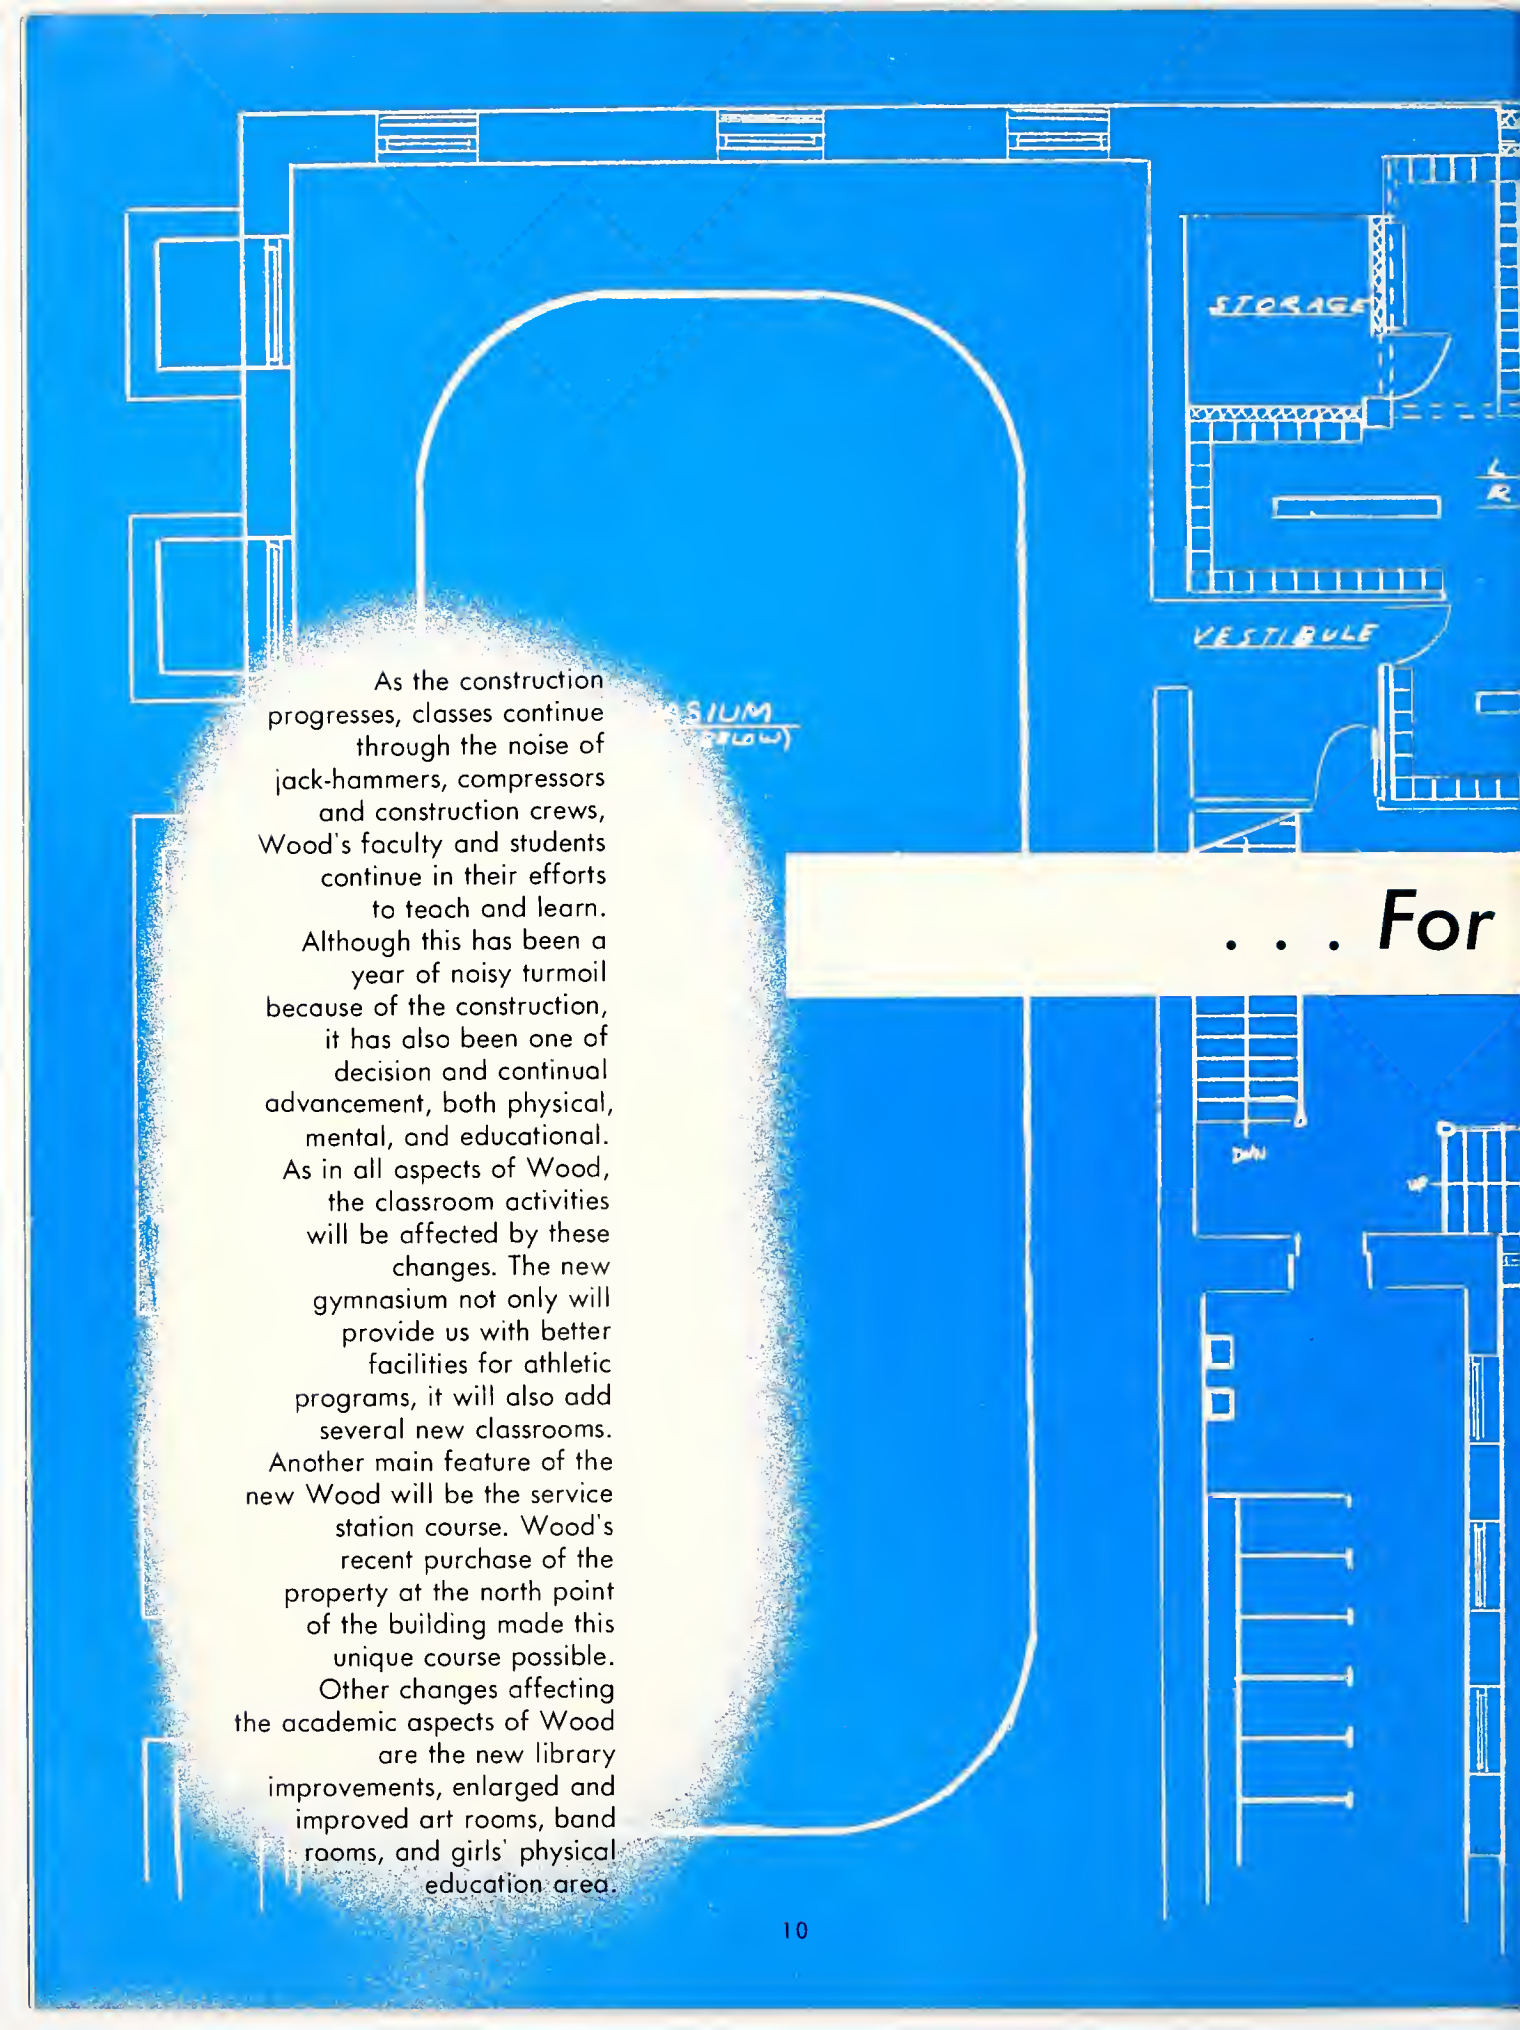
Beauty Culture reaffirms their vocation with, "Beauty is our Business".



The winning float for the second consecutive year is the Spanish Club's, with "No Bull From You."

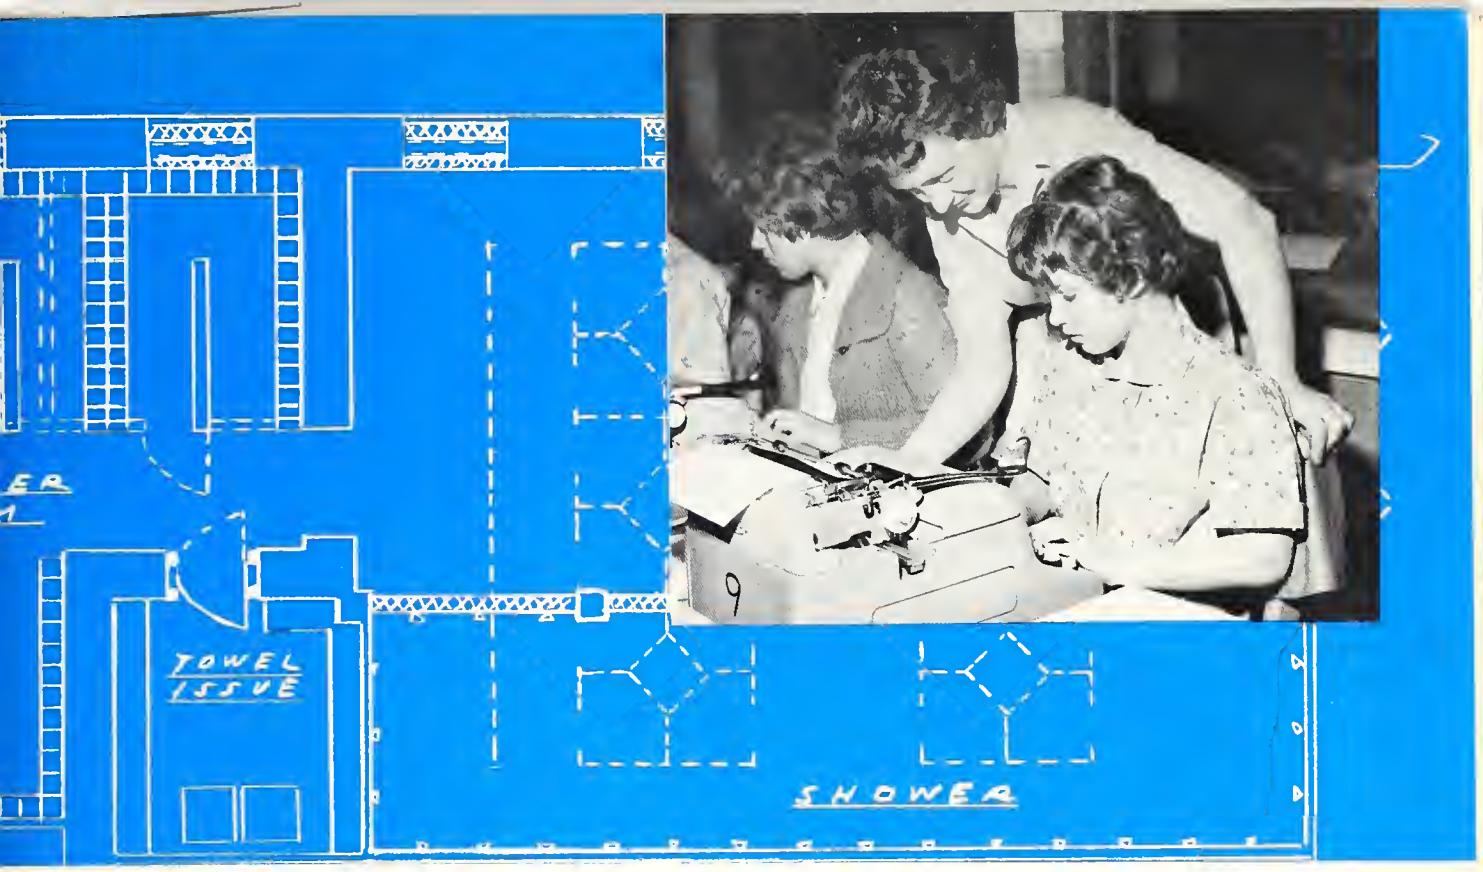


Wood's Tri-Hi-Y affirms their school spirit with "Set their Hearts on Fire".

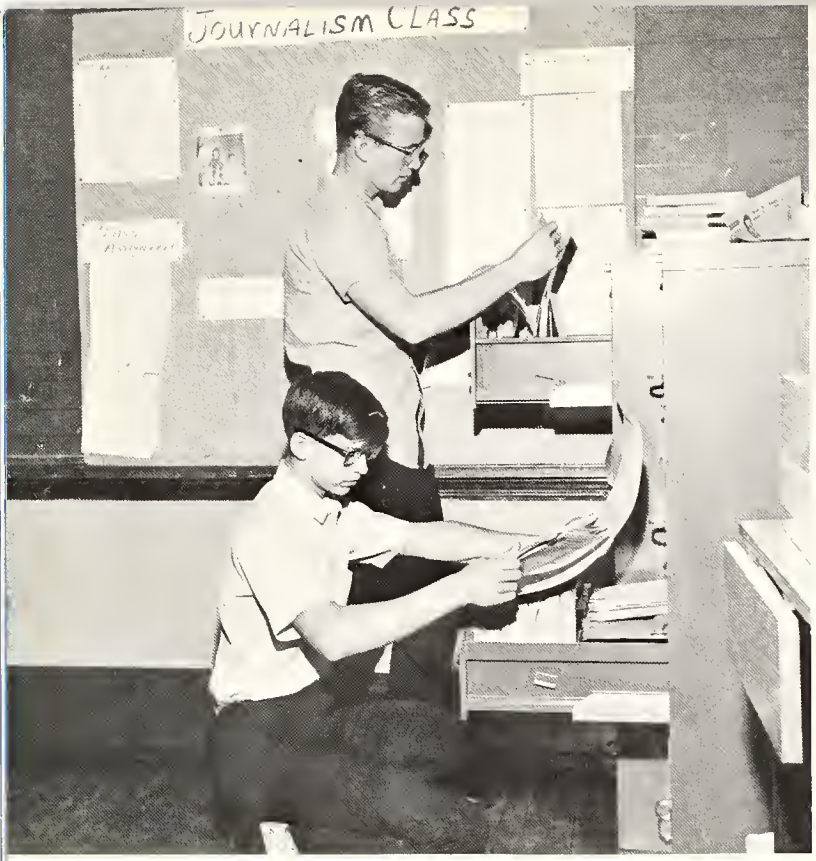


. . . For

As the construction progresses, classes continue through the noise of jack-hammers, compressors and construction crews, Wood's faculty and students continue in their efforts to teach and learn. Although this has been a year of noisy turmoil because of the construction, it has also been one of decision and continual advancement, both physical, mental, and educational. As in all aspects of Wood, the classroom activities will be affected by these changes. The new gymnasium not only will provide us with better facilities for athletic programs, it will also add several new classrooms. Another main feature of the new Wood will be the service station course. Wood's recent purchase of the property at the north point of the building made this unique course possible. Other changes affecting the academic aspects of Wood are the new library improvements, enlarged and improved art rooms, band rooms, and girls' physical education area.



Our Classrooms



Paul Kirkpatrick and Joe Brannon check the files in their Journalism class for recent newspaper articles.

In The Blueprints Of Our Modern Society, Language

Spanish class laboratory techniques are observed and practiced by Danny Quinlan, Karla Chicola, Glenda Mink, and Bonofacio Aguilar.

Arts Is An Essential Ingredient

Wood High moves forward in an effort to improve and develop our Language Arts area. New classes are added to the traditional as the need arises.

A newly established journalism class seeks not only to teach the principles of journalistic style, but to improve public relations by developing stories for publication in the city newspapers.

The new Dramatics and Public speaking classes have also been enthusiastically received by the students. Each class has a record enrollment of students learning the fundamentals offered in these courses.

Besides these new specialization courses, Wood offers a strong curriculum in language and literature, ranging from freshman to advanced English classes.

Foreign languages also have their place in this area. Wood's Spanish laboratory, featuring individual booths and a master control panel for voice recording, is one of the finest in the state. French is also offered in junior high, and plans are being made for Latin classes in senior high. As the base on which all learning is built, Language Arts takes its rightful place.

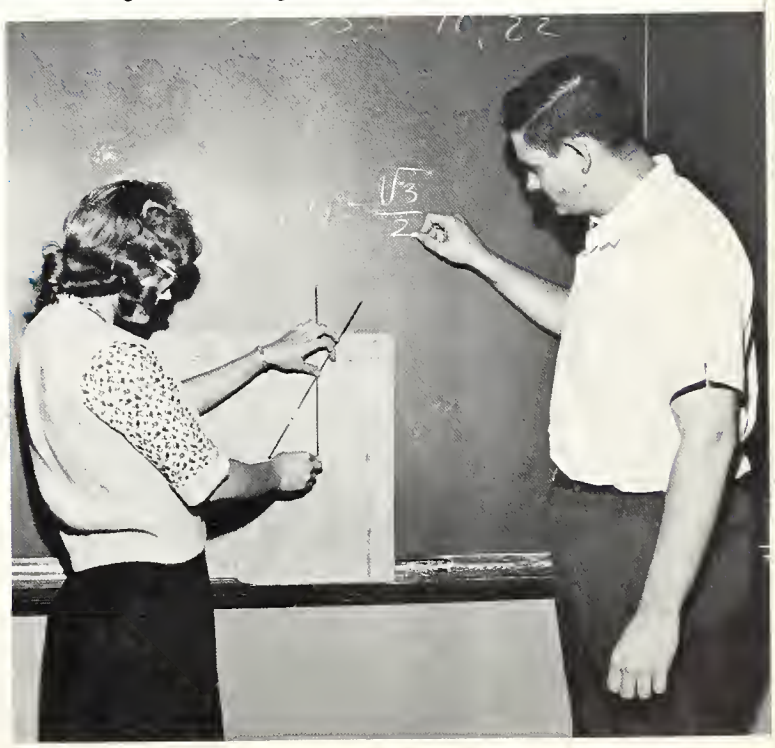
The excitement of a spirited debate is experienced by Joyce Passwater and Viga Visker in the public speaking class.

Study Of Art Helps Eyes To See World's Beauty

Leilani Fusco, Linda Arthur, and Mike Lavender prepare a chemistry experiment.

Minds Expand Through Studies Of Science And Math.

A trig-factor is used by Ellen DeHoff and Don Bolin to find an angle in their trigonometry class.



As man's knowledge of science and mathematics increases, we become more aware of how little we really know. It also becomes more and more apparent that we need a greater understanding of these subjects.

Wood High has an ever expanding science curriculum which includes courses from physical science to physics. There's also an advanced course in Chemistry; Earth science is also offered.

The mathematics courses range from general math to college algebra and calculus. Wood progresses with America to a more exciting and responsible future.

Students Take Active Part In "Year Of Decision"

Seniors Willard Mays and Vi Gosser make a display of campaign literoture. Scenes like this were common in all social studies classes during this "year of decision."

Anne Greene takes dictation on one of our modern office machines.

Courses Ready Pupils For Home And Business

Wood has always strived to keep its standards high and its curriculum advancing. In keeping with America's growing need for young people educated in business techniques, Wood High offers a well rounded business education program which includes courses in business mathematics, shorthand, general business, secretarial practice, typing, business law and others.

Since there always has been and always will be a need for well-trained homemakers, Wood provides several courses for girls in junior through senior high school level.

The complete home economics curriculum includes courses covering food preparation, clothing, family living, and social graces.

The cottage, a completely furnished five room house, provides a practical background for the girls to learn and practice good homemaking techniques.

Cutting out a pattern in clothing class is Gelio McKinney.

Steve Foley sets type in the print shop.

Skillful use of a jigsaw is practiced by boys in the woodworking class.

Industrial Arts Classes Open Avenues To Jobs

Two metal shop students solder intricate wires.

Wood progresses in the industrial area also. It is an integral part of the school's educational process.

Wood High not only strives to prepare a student educationally but mechanically as well. With its many shops such as Mechanical Drawing, Metal, Print, Woodworking, and soon even more, Wood High is building toward a bigger, better, and more progressive America.

Physical education is one of the more important aspects of school curriculum at Wood, where a complete line of courses are offered to fulfill students' needs.

Physical education, health and safety, drivers' education, and narcotics and alcoholism complete the list of courses offered in this department.

Classroom Area Duplicates Modern Cleaning Plant

A stubborn soil spot is successfully removed by Clovis Jefferson.

Anather of the amazing special areas in vocational training at Waod is the Cleaning and Pressing Course.

Here in the class area that completely duplicates the modern cleaning plant, students learn and practice the techniques in clothes cleaning and care.

Lecture classes and in-the-shop experience make up the bulk of the training the boys receive while enrolled in this course.

From complex dry cleaning machines to intricate drapery pleat hanger, the work area includes all of the modern equipment found in American cleaning plants.

The shop accepts cleaning from the faculty and students who know well that these articles will be handled with the utmast care.

Bill Gage presses o poir of trousers on the special steam press.

Sue Sorenson and Judy Smith prepare classmate Marilyn Mueller for dental examination.

Another unique vocational area is the Dental Assistant course. Established at Wood's start, it is a two semester course open to qualified senior and post graduate girls interested in training for well-paying jobs in the field of dentistry.

Course study includes such items as manipulative skills, chairside assisting, and office practice management.

During the second semester, students gain practical experience by assisting half days at the Indiana University School of Dentistry.

As in the other occupational and vocational areas, this year's 36 class members are students at other schools as well as at Wood.

Renee Bastien and Nancy Hines set customers' hairdos.

Among the most popular of the vocational courses at Wood are beauty culture and barbering. In these and the other vocational courses are enrolled students from other city high schools as well as from Wood.

Graduates must be licensed before they can practice in the fields, and the courses are designed to provide the necessary hours of practical experience and text study.

As an indication of the respect the state licensing boards hove for the worth of Wood's courses, the boards hold the official licensing examinations in Wood's vocational area work labs.

Vocational Students Look Forward To Desired Jobs

Mr. Davis and the barbering class watch class member James Tyler demonstrate barbering skills.

With the many areas of food handling taught in Commercial Foods, the course gives the students a chance to learn the various skills needed for employment by restaurants.

Students in this occupational course learn food preparation and service by working in each area during the four semesters in which they are enrolled.

Clarence Lee and Robert Scott prepare french fries.

After Extensive Training At Wood High School

Enough Chili for 2300 hungry Woodchucks requires a huge vat for preparation. Robert Blakey stirs the Chili.

A rusted racker panel is repaired by Darrell Key in auto body shop.

Basic skills of shoe repair and auto body repair are taught in the vocationl area of Wood.

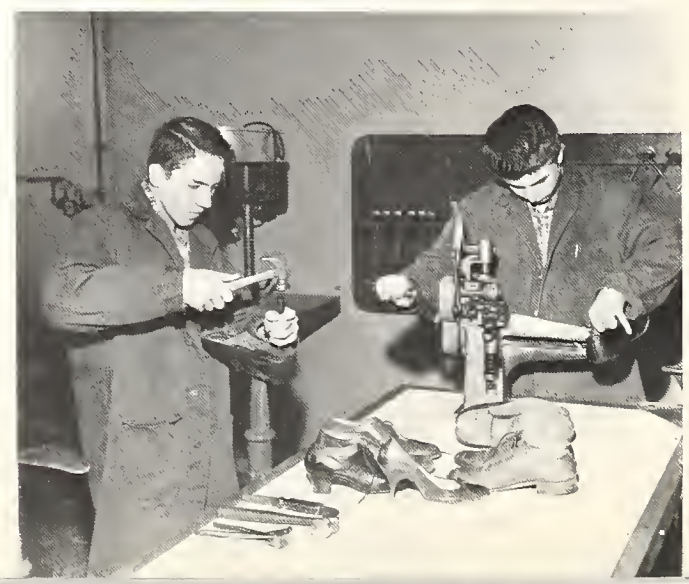
Students enrolled in shoe repair work toward a future vocation by learning the fundamentals of resoling and rebuilding shoes, and dyeing of shoe leather.

Those pupils in auto body, also working for a future vocation, learn welding, fender repair, sanding, and spray painting as part of the skills needed by a professional body repairman.

Valuable Skills Learned In Auto And Shoe Repair.

Robert Boling and James Shaffer operate one of the many complicated machines found in shoe repair.

Many varying crafts are taught in shoe repair as Don Jarvis and James Colson will tell yau.



Mr. Day explains the complicated ports of the engine to his class through use of charts.

The old saying about a first time for everything has long applied to Wood's vocational training program, and never more true since the recent addition of Wood's service station course.

Property at the north end of the building is being converted into the Woodchuck Super Service. The station will feature top grade oil products and garage work as part of the boys' on-the-job training.

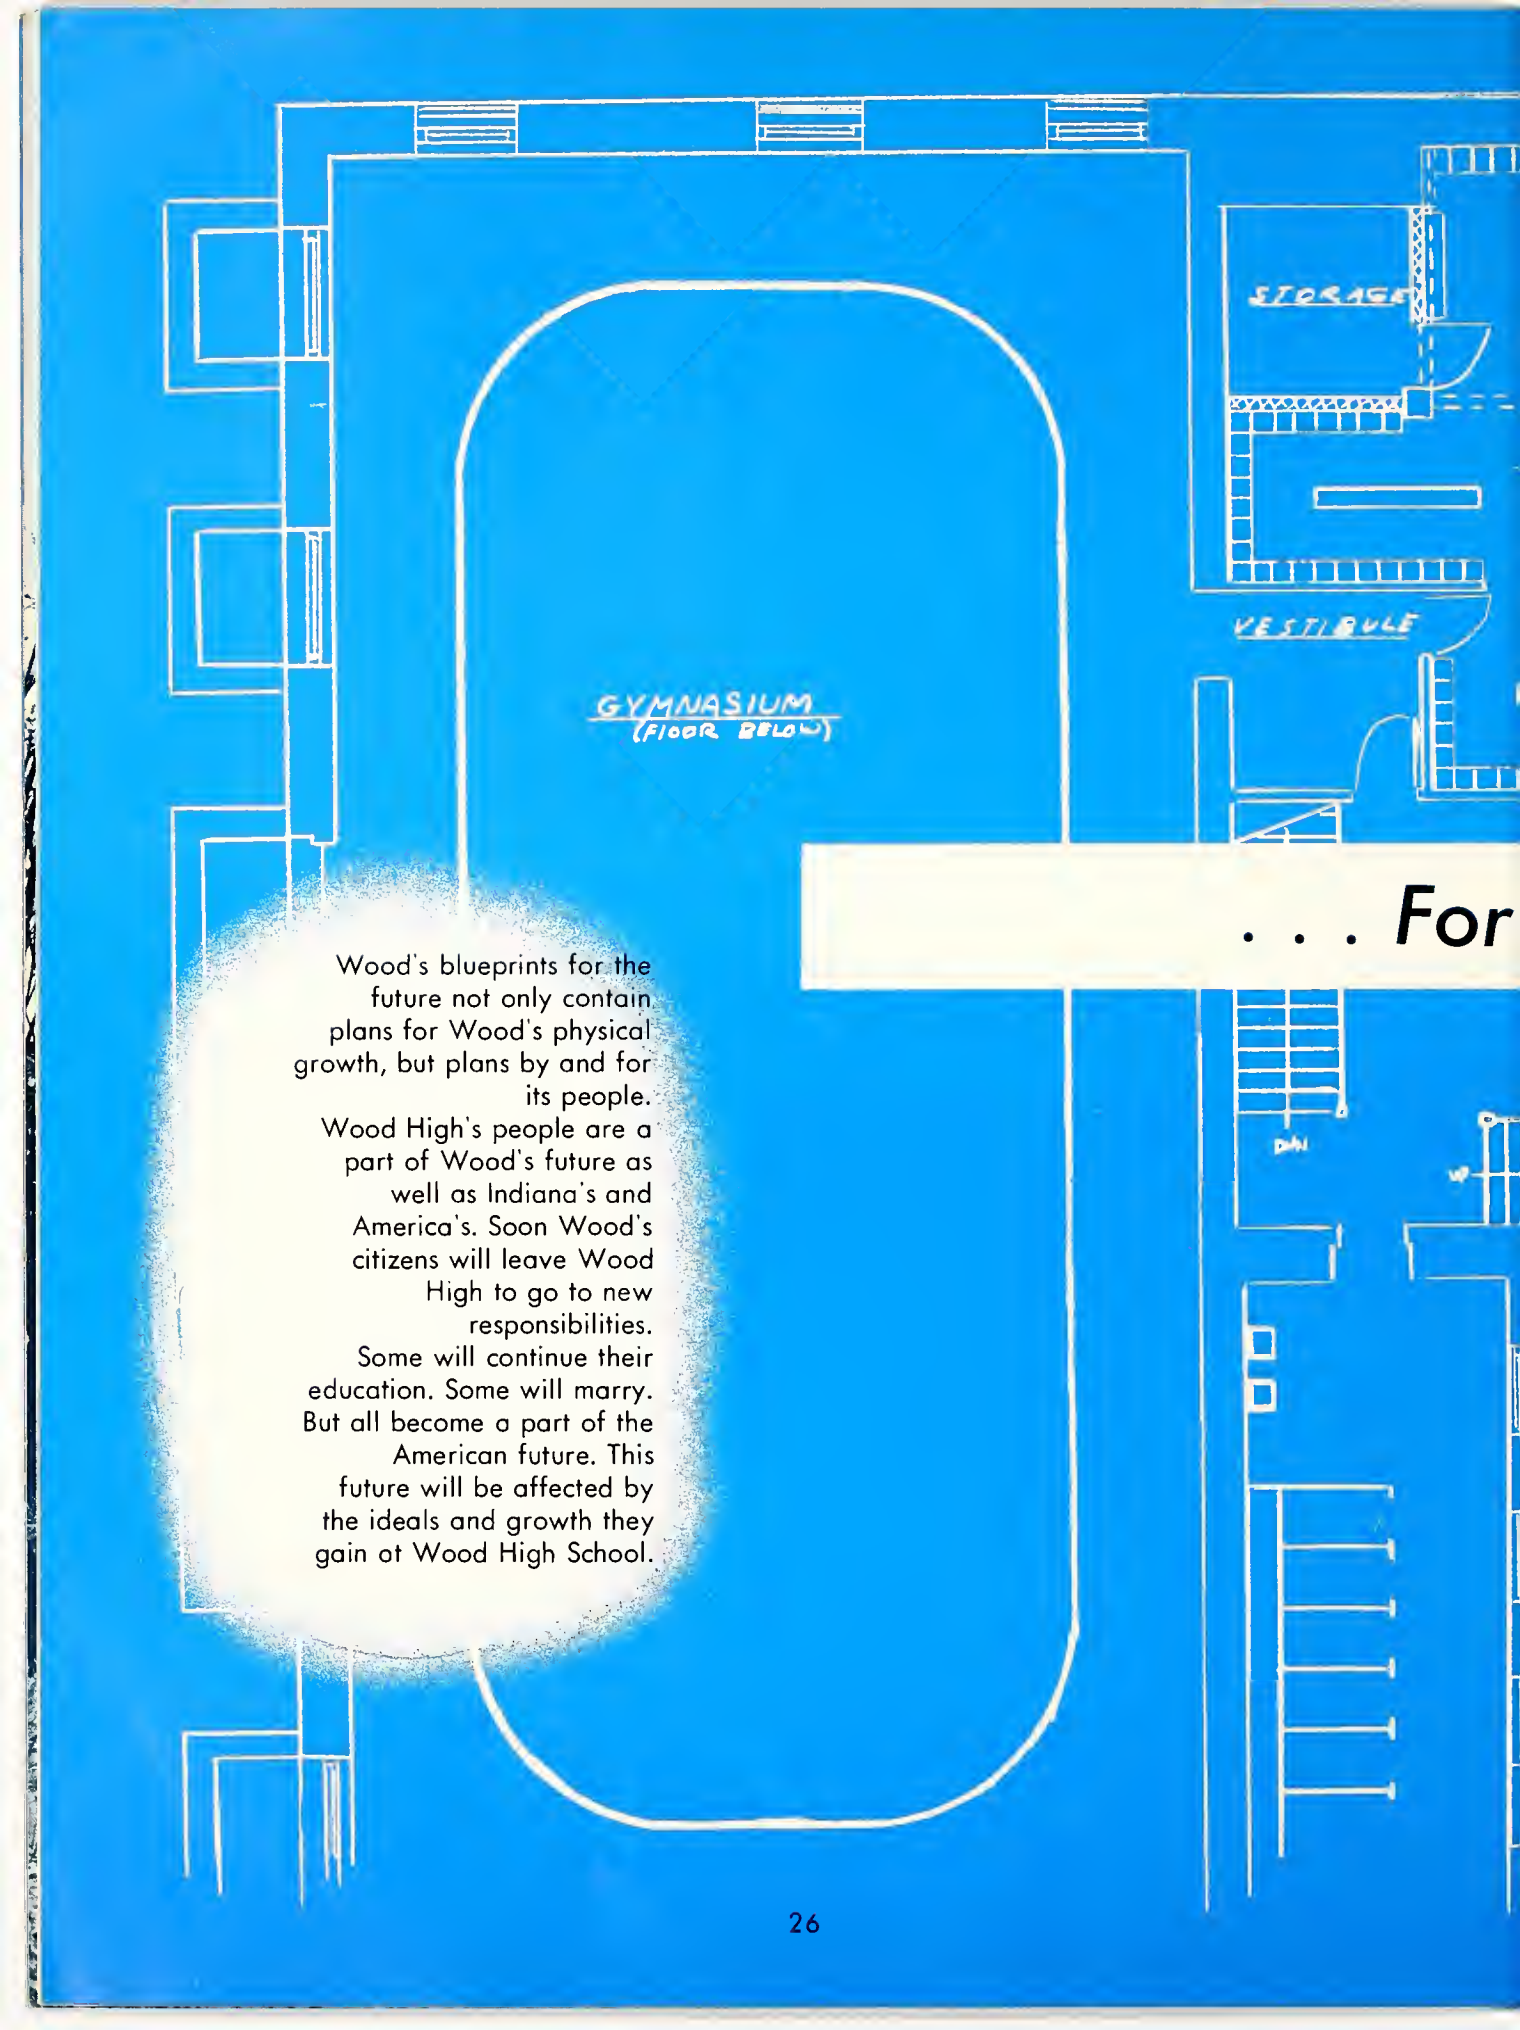
Taught by Mr. Charles Day, the course will offer training in management, merchandise display, and car maintenance. Classes are divided in shifts of three, with a manager and assistant manager. Each shift will be on duty for four hours.

Grand opening of full scale operation has been delayed due to construction, but classes have kept busy in setting up the system and doing motor work exclusively.

Newest Course Offers Woodchuck Super Service

Testing an engine are Donald Boordman and John Loyal.

David Constant, John Loyal, and Fred Pruitt repair the gas pumps.



. . . For

Wood's blueprints for the future not only contain plans for Wood's physical growth, but plans by and for its people. Wood High's people are a part of Wood's future as well as Indiana's and America's. Soon Wood's citizens will leave Wood High to go to new responsibilities. Some will continue their education. Some will marry. But all become a part of the American future. This future will be affected by the ideals and growth they gain ot Wood High School.

Our People

Steve Minor, Herschel Enochs, Jean Lunday and Steve Nickerson, Senior Class officers, look over blueprints of the new additions to Wood High School.

Class Of 1965 Sees Year Of Wood's Great Progress

Senior class sponsors Miss Barbara Neidenberger and Miss Margaret Cummins take an order of graduation announcements from Herschel Enochs, class president.

A new chapter in life begins as high school is entered. New experiences, new people, and new ideas to think about crowd a freshman's days.

Some get lost in their first weeks, but almost before the passing years are realized, the "freshie" becomes a senior. If the new position brings prestige and privilege, it brings responsibilites as well.

"Scholarship", "job", and "expense" become top words in the senior's conversation. But the fact remains that all four years of high school have prepared the senior for this, his final and perhaps best year of high school.

No exception is Wood's Class of 1965. However, Wood's seniors have other distinctions. Adding to the fervor of their last year is Wood's new construction which added an atmosphere of bustling progress.

Just as this is Wood's largest graduating class, 1965 is the year of Wood's largest growth. Although the new gymnasium will not be completed in time for this year's class, many seniors have been attending classes in the several new rooms which are ready.

As they graduate, the 1965 Senior Class leaves its contribution to Wood's tradition with an assurance of progress for future classes.

School's Progress Directed By Administration

Mr. Emery checks blue-prints of the new boys' gym.

Wood High School is proud to have three outstanding men to lead, direct and supervise the growth of Wood as it progresses through the years.

Mr. Richard E. Emery, principal, has been the guiding spirit in promoting the new building and additions at Wood.

Mr. Glen Miller has the responsibility for the vocational program planning, and handling of discipline problems.

Mr. Tom Jett controls extra-curricular programming and scheduling problems.

Vice-principals Mr. Miller and Mr. Jett deal mostly with curriculum and student problems.

Details In Learning Process Smoothed By Office Staff

Taking care of the records far more than 2300 students takes the attention of a very efficient office staff. They work with faculty, administration, and the student body to keep Wood functioning.

This wark continued smoothly this year, despite the difficulties presented by the construction going on in and around all of the offices.

The bookstore caped with new problems and lang lines, as high school students purchased their books for the first time after the rental system was abolished.

The complex difficulties that are part of running a school the size of Wood present a challenge well-met by the competent staff.

An area equaling nearly two city blocks is no easy matter to care for, especially if that area is a building of three floors and several hundred rooms.

This is the duty of Mr. Emery Hart's staff of custodians who work day and night to maintain Wood High School. A new heating system, gymnasium, and several new rooms, are some of the changes which will add to the custodians' responsibilities.

. . . For

Part of Wood's blueprints for the future consists of membership in our various organizations. Not only will the new plans include more work space for our clubs, but these plans for Wood's future provide incentive for club members. In many ways membership helps the individual to prepare for his future. The experience gained is invaluable.

Wood's organizations sponsor banquets, and pep sessions as part of their support of our athletic programs. They also put in many hours working on charity drives and other community projects.

In these and other ways club membership helps pupils to work, live, and learn for the future.

The chance of choosing, preparing for, and entering the vocations of their choice while still in school is available to members of D.C.E. or Diversified Co-operative Education. The best way to determine the proper occupation is through a knowledge of the student's interests, abilities, ond personality. Such a program is followed in D.C.E. where students study the vocations they hope to follow.

One period a day is given to classroom work, and for each student fifteen hours a week are actually spent on a job that corresponds to the area of study.

All employed students are eligible for the Work Experience Club. Members discuss occupations and compare notes on their jobs.

D.C.E. and Work Experience members co-sponsor annual banquets to which they invite their employers.

Key Club, Tri-Hi-Y Prove Exceptional Leadership

Russell Brown, Steve Doughtry, Art Felsher and Richard Hoover clean their lockers in keeping with the clean-up campaign they helped to sponsor.

Wood High School's two service clubs are the Tri-Hi-Y and Key Club. Both extend membership only to those students who have shown superior scholarship and service to the school and community.

Key Club members sponsored a school Clean-Up campaign this year. Kicking off the campaign early in November at an all-school assembly, Key Clubbers kept an eagle-eye on student-body behavior in the halls and cafeteria throughout the year.

Athletic banquets were also sponsored by the club during the year, with money raised by the sale of sectional hats, a traditional Key Club program.

Tri-Hi-Y officers begun the year's planning with attendance at a State Convention in October.

Members take part in various charity drives in the community. The Christmas season brings activity by club members, as they wrap and distribute gifts for families in the community.

Glenda Mink, Judy Statzer, and Mary Sarkine check their blueprints and recommended procedures for a community service which the Tri-Hi-Y support.

As Contests And Special Programs Highlight Season.

True to Wood's philosophy of education is the Vocal Music department with its wide range of organizations.

Acting on a feeder-system basis, the primary organizations act as proving grounds for the more specialized groups such as Senior Choir and Ensemble.

After an apprenticeship in the Girls' Chorus and Boys' Concert Club, students are chosen by audition for ultimate membership in these other groups.

For example, a boy may progress from Concert Club through Octet to Mixed Ensemble and Senior Choir.

Each group performs at various programs throughout the year. Of special delight to members is participation in contests during the year.

Proud of their new gold membership pins, Spanish Club members again placed first in October's Homecoming Parade of Floats.

Meetings were held bi-weekly in the language lab, where club officers drafted a new constitution and parliamentary procedure was strictly adhered to by the large membership.

The annual Christmas dinner was held at the Mexican Village Restaurant where authentic food and entertainment was enjoyed by members and guests. Projects including a white elephant sale kept the members occupied late into the afternoon.

Glenda Mink and Chuck Kirkwood, president and vice-president, led Chicos Espanoles de Wood through Spring dances and programs of a cultural interest to all Woodchucks. The Spanish Club's aim was to promote an understanding of our Latin neighbors by the student body.

Arthur, Kirkpatrick, Bolin And Kern Take Honors

Senior Linda Arthur topped her past awards with an oppointment to the All-Student Bond U.S.A.

Upon returning from vacation in September, musically inclined Woodchucks found no home base. With instruments in hand, they looked with dismay at the hollow shell they had called the band room. Rootless, band members set up house-keeping on the stage. Music stands cluttered the entire auditorium. There was only spare room for Mr. Brittan's desk, but things soon straightened out.

To assist Mr. Brittan, Mr. John Holt came. The two dynamic leaders kept time amid the chaos of homeless band and orchestra pupils.

Even though roomless, stirring marches were heard at Wood's athletic events. New pep yells were backed by exciting band arrangements such as "Hello Woodchucks."

Dan Bolin's tuba, Bill Kirkpatrick's rolling drums, young Richard Kern's cello brought honors to Wood from state contests. Linda Arthur won a position with the All-Student Band U.S.A. a talented group of young musicians who will tour Europe this summer, presenting concerts.

There was a tremendous cheer when the new band room was opened for official use. From the gleaming new floor to the acoustical ceiling, the 1965 band room reflected the ever-growing H.E.W. interest in instrumental music.

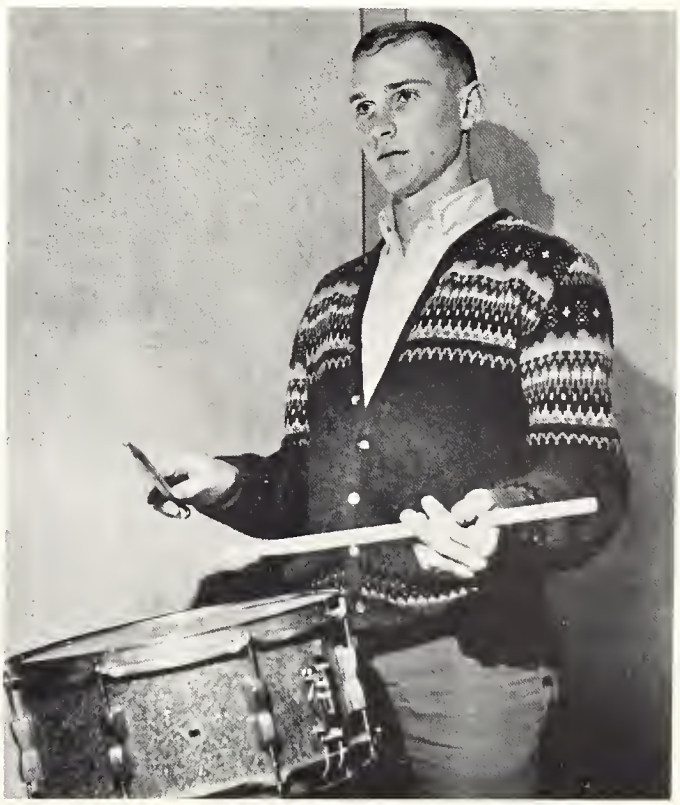
Dan Balin's tuba solo won him a second place in the state contest.



A first in the state contest went to senior Bill Kirkpatrick for his drum solo.

Drum Major, Bill Kirkpatrick

Bill Kirkpatrick is a 5 year veteran of Wood's marching band who has led the school's band for 2 years as Drum Major.

Also under the Drum Major's directions are the 6 young ladies of the Hewetts. Their job is to help keep the band in step. During half time at the school's games, the Hewetts perform.

Library And Nurse's Assistants Learn By Helping

NURSE'S ASSISTANTS: C. Chapman, C. Chapman, L. Kelley, S. Wise, S. Kerr, P. Meador.

From the check out desk to the mysteries of the card catalogue, the librarian assistants are prepared to help fellow students.

Their purpose is two-fold, however. Not only do they assist in the library, but each girl is a member of the class where they receive $\frac{1}{2}$ credit. The girls compete for three scholarships to the annual workshop at Indiana University.

Under the supervision of school nurse Sylvia Bird, girls interested in nursing as a career work in the nurse's office as assistants.

Through keeping records and assisting Mrs. Bird in tests and examinations, the girls are introduced to the nursing profession.

Two Teams Make Debut On Radio, Television

JUNIOR TOWN MEETING: L. Fusco, F. Eakins, J. Lunday, J. Loflin, J. Clark and Jim Shelton tape a program.

Conquering their individual cases of "Butterflies" and stage fright, several Wood Students appeared on local radio and television on the Exercise In Knowledge and Junior Town Meeting teams.

The Exercise In Knowledge team prepared for competition from other schools by using practice questions submitted by teachers in different areas. Questions about math, science, current events and the arts were asked on the program.

Panel discussions on topics of current interest highlighted the appearances of the Junior Town Meeting team.

Team members were chosen from outstanding social studies students, and broadcasts were taped in school by the radio station.

An Apple For The Teacher May Refer To Student

Students who express an interest in teaching careers have ample opportunity to explore the field through membership in two Wood organizations.

Sponsored by Mr. James Mosby, the pupils in the cadet teaching program begin with a two week instruction period. After this they go into the grade schools where they observe for the first two weeks and then are given the chance to teach classes. Some cadet teachers remain at Wood to continue their programs.

Members of Future Teachers of America meet to learn about the teaching profession through the use of films, lectures, and field trips.

Also advised by Mr. Mosby, the F.T.A. sponsored several activities this past year, including an open house in the Cottage for cadet teachers from other high schools. They also served as hosts at Wood's Open House.

By participating in these activities the students gain an insight into the field of teaching.

Sharon Richardson takes notes of a cadet teachers' meeting, as Maynard Bell, Mr. Mosby, Jean Lunday, Steve Nickerson, and Gary Williams look on.

Members Solve Mysteries Of Finance And Science

JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT: Charles Baker, Connie Haynes, Linda Minor and Mary Beasley.

Junior Achievement is a program whereby teenagers organize their own small-scale business. Under the direction of volunteer advisers from local business and industry, they operate the business to gain practical experience and training in business procedures.

Each company is organized as a corporation. The members who make up the company act as its board of directors, officers, working force, and sales staff. A product or service to be sold is chosen. Like any business, capital is needed before operation can begin. This initial capital is raised by selling shares of common stock.

Companies proceed to manufacture and sell the product or service for a profit. This profit is divided among stockholders in the company at the end of the fiscal period.

Chosen on the basis of their scores in the Westinghouse Science Talent Test, Ellen DeHoff and Arthur Felsher attend the Science Seminar. They meet with students from other local city high schools each Saturday at the I. U. Medical Center where they hear lectures by qualified men in the field of science.

SCIENCE SEMINAR: Ellen DeHoff and Art Felsher conduct an experiment discussed at the seminar.

Microscopes, test tubes, and chemical flasks are among the many items that lab ossistants see ond handle each day. Under the direction of science department head Mr. Boris Chaleff, the assistants learn the techniques of running a science laboratory.

These science-minded students help teachers set up displays and experiments as a service to the department. By performing these services and working in the science laboratories, the students further their own knowledge of science.

The biology club, under the leadership of Mr. Gene Austin, was organized this post semester to help promote a general interest in the biological sciences. The twenty members meet every other Tuesday to hear lectures and to hold discussions.

Several field trips were planned to show the opportunities for careers in biology.

Theatre's Magic Begins And Stage Fright Vanishes

Rehearsing a scene is Thespian Troupe #1458,-W. Mays, S. White, T. Judkins, and F. Stanley. Not pictured, D. Huston.

A new innovation by the Dramatics Club this year is the Children's Theater. Children's classics were presented by the group in the auditorium to elementary school children in Wood's area. One of the most popular given was the "Wizard of Oz."

Actors who acquire 10 points by appearing in the various plays may join the National Thespian Society. One point is given for each 10 lines an actor learns for a play. Wood's Thespian Troupe #1458 numbers five members this year.

Membership in these organizations offers the student countless opportunities to practice the art of acting and the related talents. Members not only appear on the stage but act as prompters, design posters, sell tickets, and apply makeup on fellow actors.

As The House Lights Dim And Velvet Curtains Part

The curtains rise and the auditorium is lighted only by the stage lights and performances of Wood's actors.

For a short space of time the audience is transported to other places and other times. The theater works its old magic again.

Behind the final production the audience watches are weeks of practice and preparation. Sets are designed and painted, costumes sewn and parts memorized.

Many more people then those appearing on the stage are responsible for the success of a school play. But all will agree "The Play's The Thing."

A scene from "You Can't Take it With You" lights up the stage.

Mike Gibson helps Danny Quinlan with his costume and makeup.

Mr. Sanders points out a finer point of acting to his troupe.

Student Council Sponsors Sportsmanship Slogan Contest

The student council is a central student governing body which interprets school rules and regulations to the student body, and sponsors projects of general interest.

Council members are selected from all home rooms to insure complete representation. Members attend local, state, and national conferences throughout the year.

A sportsmanship slogan contest for sectional time was one of the activities sponsored by the Council in conjunction with other councils in the city.

Student Council officers Judy Mink, Willard Mays, Linda Arthur, and Geneva Baxter.

Behind every scene, at the source of every light beam, there is a member of the stage crew on hand to operate the stage apparatus. The stage crew is responsible for the care and management of the auditorium as well as the preparation of sets.

Also adding their services are the helpers in the audio visual department. Keeping track of the film, projectors, recorders, and record players used each day requires a staff of dependable helpers.

They not only keep such records, but act as projectionists and do simple repair work.

The speech team had a very successful season this year as it traveled to such places as Bloomington and Peru to compete in meets. Coached by Mr. Nick Sanders, top award winners were Elizabeth Johnson, Frank Stanley and Willard Mays.

Elizabeth received awards for her original speech. Frank Stanley's awards were in the humorous category, and Willard won in the field of radio announcing.

Main project of the team was the operation of the in-school radio station. The station's call letters were W.O.O.D., and was staffed by members of the speech team and members of Mr. Sander's speech class.

Award winners Willard Mays and Elizabeth Johnson practice before their speech class.

After School Activities Earn Points For G.A.L.

G. A. L.: Row 1: C. Sherels, A. Smith, G. Cook, S. Richardson. Row 2: M. Fields, R. Sentency, Z. Meador, L. Minor.

By earning 30 points while participating in girls' sports such as softball, basketball, volleyball or shuffleboard, interested girls may join the Girls' Athletic League, Wood's Chapter of the Girls' Athletic Association.

More points are earned as the girls participate in these after-school activities. Upon earning 100 honor points the girls receive a chenille G.A.L. letter. When the total points reach 200, the participants receive a chenille woodchuck and sweater.

Messages, Filing Jobs Keep Office Helpers Busy

By typing, filing, and delivering messages, student office workers perform invaluable service to their school. Working in the student center, main, attendance, and social service offices, these girls and boys do various tasks that relieve the permanent office staff and permits them ta do their jabs better. There are over 40 students helping in these, plus departmental office.

B. Anderson, L. Miller, M. Lewis, and W. Browning (left to right) are just a few of the main office helpers.

Fashion Board members Jean Lunday and Patsy Fuqua point out the latest styles in a fashion magazine.

Indianapolis' large department stores have long been aware of the teenagers interest in the latest fashions. Each sponsor a Fashion Board of representatives from local high schools. These girls act as laison between the teens of their school and fashion experts. Waad's representatives are Jean Lunday, senior, and juniar Patsy Fuqua.

With a flurry of excitement, Wood Publications Department worked to report the "big story" of the year-the construction of additional class areas and the new gym.

Matching Wood's growth with its own addition of a News Bureau, the publications staffs expressed all phases of Wood to the community as well as inside the school itself.

Building its staff from the new Journalism class, the News Bureau assigned a correspondent to each city newspaper and broadcasting station.

Yearbook staffers gathered pictures, copy, headlines and advertising to compile the year's happenings for the Wood Log.

They also competed in subscription sales contests sponsored Homecoming, created "catchy" posters, and performed the many other various jobs found in the publications field.

. . . For

Among Wood's blueprints for the future is a new 2280 seat Gymnasium, to be finished next fall. Then, Wood will be able to host all home basketball games in their own building. In the new two story gymnasium building will be several new classrooms as well as athletic locker space and storage facilities. Wood's sports program has always planned for the future by being a means of strengthening the qualities that participants need. With the new building and facilities available, the job will be more easily accomplished.

"Tall and talented" was a phrase coined by many sportswriters about Wood's varsity basketball team this year.

The "tall" refers to the eleven of twelve boys on the team six feet or taller. Our two tallest boys were Greg Northington and Gus Chatmon.

Greg, a 6'9" sophomore, showed much improvement over the season. Gus at 6'7" was one of the team's mainstays all year.

The team was talented without question, but due to some bad breaks had to settle for a 16-8 record against some rigid competition.

Coach Wilson's boys had to take on 3 of the state's top 10 teams in a period of two days and managed to down two, Manual and Tech.

The Manual City Tourney game was probably the highlight of the season. Manual was riding 13-0, including a win over Wood, and was ranked second in the state. The Chucks "scalped the skins" 73-70. The next afternoon Wood downed Tech 47-46 to reach the City finals for the first time in our history. But Wood dropped the title game to Washington 72-66.

Wood's Sectional Tourney Bid Ends In Frustration

The team wound up the year by reaching the semi-final round of the Southport Tourney. The Woodchucks dropped a heartbreaker to Manual 75-70 in overtime.

Following the tournament James Todd and Carl Kelley were selected to the Southport All-Sectional Team.

Woodchucks End Season With Sportsmanship

This year's Woodchuck football team compiled a 3 win and 6 loss record with victories over Brebeuf, Chartard, and Shortridge.

Woody Kelly was the team leader in total yards gained. Woody gained 404 yards in 79 carries. Bob Cooley had the best yards per carry average, averaging 8.0 yards per carry.

Leading pass receiver was Jim Clark who caught ten. Bob Cooley led the team in yards gained through the air. Bob caught passes totaling 162 yards.

The defensive team was led by Lee Foley who had a total of 72 tackles.

Quarterback George Diggs was named the team's most valuable player. His brother, David was honored as the most improved player. Lineman awards went to Lee Foley and Gerald Robinson. Pat Davis received the Kiwanis Award for having the outstanding grade average on the team.

Wood's Men Of Iron Show "Stick-To-It" Ability

The Ironmen Club is probably the most exclusive organization at Wood High School. The club consists of boys who have never missed a football practice throughout the entire season which begins August 15th.

Members are: Row 1: B. Dunn, G. Diggs, G. Robinson, P. Davis. Raw 2: R. Hinderliter, D. Diggs, W. Bellamy, W. Moore.

The freshmen team had the rather unfortunate pleasure of playing the toughest teams in the city. Of the eight games the team played, four of them were against teams who finished the season unbeaten.

The frosh overall record was 0-7-1. The tie came against arch rival Manual. However, with these hard-fought games came the experience members needed.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL TEAM: Coach Davidson, R. McDowell, B. Loyd, M. Eads, R. Johnson, P. Moore, Coach Hendrick, J. Cooley, L. Mixon, D. Smock, G. Thomas, C. Parder, T. Sears, Manager C. Averritt, G. Fairbanks, K. Minor, H. Scott, K. Adams.

The spectators often see players break through the line for long runs. The backs seem to receive most of the credit but they will be the first to admit that without the aid of the offensive blocker, their run probably would not have been possible.

Players watch from the bench as teammates perform on field.

The Cross Country team had a good year, finishing 4-3 in dual meets.

Sophomore Ray Robbins broke the school record by turning in a time of 10:30. Ray set the record against Howe and tied it during the city tournament.

The team competed in four tournaments during the year. Their best finish was third in the Howe Invitational. The team wound up their season by finishing eleventh in a field of 18 in the sectionals.

Ray Robbins was named the team's Outstanding Runner. The Mental Attitude Award was voted to Steve Sloan. Russell Brown and Gary Williams were elected team captains.

The team, coached by Dallas Kelsey, had its best record ever, winning 12 and losing 5. The team downed Manual, Sacred Heart, Arlington, and Cathedral for the first time in Wood's competition with these schools.

The year was highlighted by an invitation to compete in the Col. Bishop Memorial Tennis Tournament held at Culver Military Academy. This tourney determines the mythical state champion and only Indiana's most powerful teams are invited. Our Woodchucks raised many eyebrows by finishing in fifth place.

The players were honored at the Spring Sports Banquet. Receiving awards were Hershel Enochs, Mental Attitude; Jim Enochs, Most Improved Player; Eddie Carter, Outstanding Freshman; and Willard Mays, Most Valuable Player. Hershel and Willard were elected team captains for the second year in a row.

Wood's Wrestling team finished its first season under the direction of new coach Mr. Cleo Moore, and as a "young team" it did very well.

Several boys did end the season with placings in the Sectionals. George Diggs, Manual Odom, George Frazier and James Curry, brought home second, third, and fourth place honors.

Coach Moore will have several experienced boys next season with Ray Robbins, Harry Scott, Roger McDawell, Roy Hinderliter, Robert Murff, and Manual Odom returning. Better facilities next year should raise the morale of the team and give them a place of their own to practice. New coach and matmen look forward to their second year together with high hopes.

Bill Kirkpotrick holds the schaol record for the pole voult.

Co-Captained by Stan Burgett and Charles Clark, Wood's 1965 track season was highlighted by winning City and Sectional titles in the broad jump. Both were won by Clark who broke the Sectional meet record with a jump of 22'7½".

During the year, Coach Stahlhut's tracksters set two school records and tied one. Bill Kirkpatrick topped the old mark in the pole vault with a vault of 12'3", while Clark lowered the low hurdles record to 20.5 seconds. The 440 yd. run record was tied by Eddie Mintze. Eddie had a time of 53.5 seconds.

Trophies were presented to outstanding team members at the close of the season at the annual Sports Banquet.

Charles Clark was honored as both the outstanding field event man and best runner, while Stan Burgett was presented with the sportsmanship award. The most improved trophy went to Bill Kirkpatrick.

Stan Burgett practices pole voulting.

Wood's Sluggers Improve Through Work And Practice

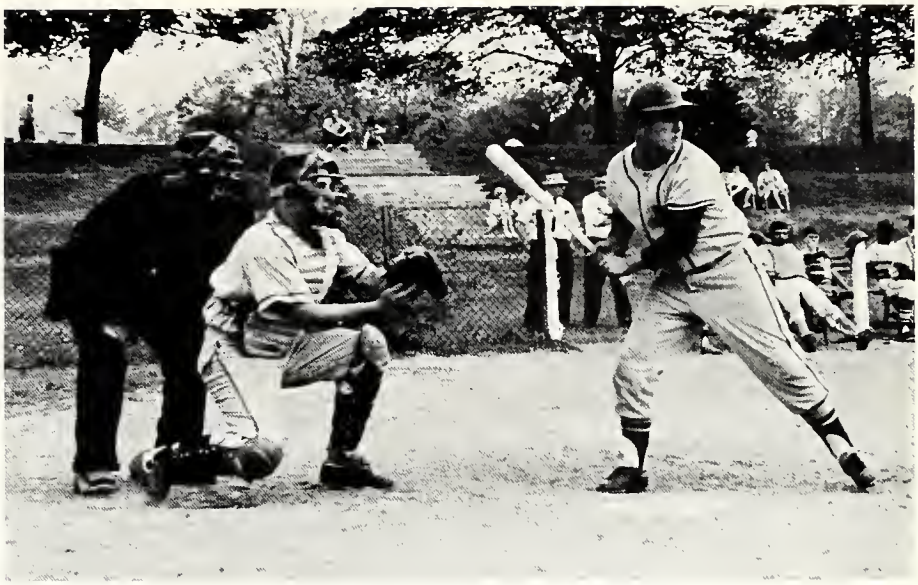
Team members watch the game progress.

Vast improvement is what must be said about Coach Ward's baseball team. The team was only able to win one game but the improvement over the season was tremendous.

The Chucks dropped their opening game to University School of Bloomington 22 to 0. The boys again played Bloomington for their final game of the season. This time Bloomington only squeaked by to win 2-1, and they needed extra innings to do it!

Tommy Craig was the team's outstanding hitter and most valuable player. Tom hit a very respectable .459. Steve Minor was next in line at .350. Don Taylor received the pitching award.

Tony Murello trots to first base.



Buddy Williams prepares far a hit.

Chuck Team Members Show Grim Determination

Miss Cummings demonstrates the proper way to pitch a softball.

Girls sports at Wood High is almost entirely intramural, although we do have teams representing us in intramural competition.

Sports to choose from include shuffleboard, softball, tennis, basketball, volleyball, kickball, track, bowling and the new game of boundball.

Intramural teams compete with girls from other schools, especially in track events.

Physical Development: A Goal Of Importance

Girls learn the new game called "boundball".

G.A.L. president Sharon Richardson participates in a game of shufflebaard.

Blueprints for the future must be encouraged and heartened by one's friends. Wood High School has had a lot of help in their march of progress. Among these friends and companions in progress have been many businesses, both large and small. Such businesses have always been the heart beat and life's blood of America's progress, and in Wood's years of building and growing, have played an essential role.

Producing the 1965 Wood Log has meant working on weekends and holidays. It has meant staying long hours after school and it has meant much planning and some pain. But it has meant fun as well (otherwise we couldn't have lived through it!).

For the seniors we hope these pages represent the fun-filled months that have brought to a close your high school days, recorded in a manner that will leave a lasting impression.

For the underclassmen, we hope to have presented a permanent record in words and pictures of your past year at Wood.

Yet for us, the staff, it will represent a year of devoted work and the elation that is felt when all is completed. It will represent the friends gained and the sleep lost.

The Wood Log staff is not one person, nor is it a committee or even a collection of committees. It is instead the combined work of several individuals working together, and sometimes it seemed, at cross purposes. To those who have contributed their time and talents, we express our sincere appreciation. People such as Miss Barbara Neidenberger, our sponsor, who gave freely of her time to work with us on the book, and without whom this book could not have been published. To Mr. Richard Emery, our principal, who understood and helped with the many problems which faced us. To John Price, our school photographer, who toiled many hours taking and developing pictures, and spending countless hours in the darkroom helping us to meet deadlines.

Not forgotten are the many people who wandered into the office or were perhaps even dragged there and put to work when deadlines were near. We wish to express a sincere "thank you" to the faculty and administration, without whose guidance, cooperation and tolerance this book would not have been possible.
